

Suggested Interview Questions

In an effort to help you prepare for an interview, we've put together some suggested questions to make you look like an expert without reading the book.

- What is Failure to Launch Syndrome?
- Where did your passion for launching teens begin?
- In your book you say that you think parents need to take back the responsibility of teaching our kids what they need to know to be adults. What do you mean by that?
- You say you chose the unconventional method to help your bullied teen. What did you do?
- Of all the things that could possibly help teens learn the skills they need, why business? What is it about running a business together that helped your teen?
- Does it matter what business they start?
- Will this method work for all teens?
- Where would a parent start?
- I've heard you say that businesses are jumping on the bandwagon and creating programs to help. Can you explain?
- We have to know, where is your daughter now?
- Where can parents find out more?

